FIRST CHURCH SERVICE FOR ALL STUDENTS

Service in Union Ballroom on Sunday

MR. M. STAUFFER

Sir Arthur Currie will Lead Scripture Reading

Two or three times during the college year the ballroom of the Union is the scene of a dignified gathering of students and members of the Faculty, when one of the University Church Services takes place. On Sunday morning at eleven o'clock the first service for this session will be held, and the arrangements for it are now completed. All undergraduates are invited to attend this service, setting aside their own church affiliations to gather with their fellow students.

In order to do away with the confusion of hymn-books, a sufficient number of programmes have been printed, and will be distributed for the service. The service will be short and there will be plenty of singing.

The Principal, Sir Arthur Currie, will attend and will lead the scripture reading. Sir Arthur has expressed himself as being heartily in favour of the idea of arranging such a service, and in fact, looks forward to the day when a college chapel will provide the opportunity for regular student meetings on Sundays.

Members of the Faculty of the Theological College have promised to assist in the carrying out of the programme. Dr. James Smyth will be in charge and will introduce the speaker, while Dr. W. H. Warriner will lead in prayer.

The preacher will be Mr. Milton Stauffer, of New York, who arrived this morning to spend several days.

MUSIC FACULTY HOLD CONCERT FOR STUDENTS

Much Talent Discovered at Orchestral Concert

LARGE AUDIENCE

Schumann's Symphony in D Minor Particularly Well Rendered

Schumann's Symphony in D minor as presented by members of the McGill University Faculty of Music, was the outstanding item of the programme presented by them at the Royal Victoria College last night. The excellent rendering of this famous composition was greatly appreciated by the large audience in attendance.

The soft and impressive way in which the Introduction was commenced, the beautiful and touching melody produced in the Romance which follows, the striking and strongly rhythmic theme developed in the Scherzo and the stately slowness of the Finale, attested to the excellent training which the students have received, and to the high standard of proficiency which they have attained.

"Aria" from the Opera "Night-Encampment in Grenada" by Kreutzer, was rendered in splendid fashion by Miss Francis James. While the "Trio for Solo Violins, Op. 2" by Hermann played by Miss Kathleen Perrin, Miss Beatrice Earle and Miss Ethel Lamplough was particularly well received.

Other items on the evening's programme were an Overture, "Midsummer Night's Dream" by Mendelssohn, "On the Steppes of Central Asia" by Borodine, "A la Balalaika" by Kachetoff, and "Two Slavonic Dances for Orchestra Op. 72" by Dvořak.

The concert was in every way a marked success, and the efforts of the musicians called forth frequent rounds of applause from the audience.

THE IMPERIAL DEBATING TEAM TO TOUR CANADA

Will Encounter Thirteen Canadian College Debating Teams

EXPENSES GUARANTEED

Men Chosen from English Universities; Meet McGill in January

Final arrangements have been completed for the Canadian tour of the Imperial Debating team, it was learned last night. Thirteen Canadian Universities and three other organizations will pit their energies against this representative English team, chosen from the cream of the English University debating talent, the opening months of the coming year. A sum of $2,500 is being guaranteed by the Canadian Universities to cover travelling expenses, while each individual University will provide accommodation and entertainment for the debaters for the duration of their stay.

Col. Borey has been busy since the summer months making arrangements with the Canadian Universities on behalf of the National Union of Students, London, England. The C. P. R. is handling the transportation end of the trip.

The team is to be a four man group made up of one speaker from Oxford, one from Cambridge, one from the other universities in England, and one from either Scotland or England. McGill and Toronto are pleading $250 each, and the other universities sums ranging from $150 to $200, making a total of $2,500 in all.

LIVELY DISCUSSION AT ECONOMICS CLUB

Keen Debate Followed Addresses by Bogante and Harris

"Peace and War in Europe" and "The Locarno Treaty" were the subjects discussed at a meeting of the Economics Club held in the Arts Building last night, when J. R. Bogante and T. H. Harris read papers on these two topics. The former spoke of events and conditions in Europe prior to the opening of the Great War, while Harris continued the narrative up to the present time, dwelling in detail upon the recent Locarno Treaty.

Bogante, tracing the events leading up to the Great War, dealt fully with formation of the Triple Alliance and its necessary counterpoise the Entente. Bismarck's unscrupulous diplomacy, as witness his secret treaty with Austria and his prevention of Italy's joining France, his final mighty alliance of the central powers of Europe, were spoken of in detail. Then he touched on Edward VII and others' realization of the necessity for an opposition and the outcome in the Entente Cordiale. He spoke of the crises which resulted immediately when the Triple Alliance was opposed by the latter and said that, had the Entente been as aggressive as Germany and her allies the war would have been precipitated two or three years earlier than it was.

He continued by stating some of the economic facts which cluded by summarizing the reasons for the entrance of each country concerned into the war, and the fallacy of the general conception of the term "balance of power."

After Harris in a clever address punctuated with sundry jokes, among other things at the Foreys and the Godines and Mulissolin's friend, Novick, sketched briefly events from the war onwards, or two on the Versailles Treaty, touched on Wilson's "14 Points," and went on to discuss each of the articles of the Locarno Pact with emphasis on the fundamental meanings.

PAPERS READ AT M. W. S. MUSIC CLUB

Selections Illustrating Work of Bach and Schumann

The lives and work of Bach and Schumann composed the topic of a very successful meeting of the M.W.S. Music Club held yesterday in the Royal Victoria College.

The first part of the programme was devoted to Bach. Miss Marguerite Benny read Miss Robson's paper on this composer. She claimed that Bach has made an incalculable impression on modern music. He wrote in the form of instrumental music. "Not enough people appreciated Bach," she stated. It is necessary to know him well to enjoy him. In conclusion, the speaker said "as Chaucer is the father of poetry, so is Bach the father of music."

This reading was followed by a piano solo by Miss Muriel Ball—a two-part invention in B flat. After this came a violin solo entitled "Ave Maria" by Miss Eleanor Brooks and accompanied by Miss Benny. All selections were very well rendered by the respective players.

The programme continued with a paper on Schumann which was read by Miss Alice MacKinnon. In the early life of the composer was outlined showing its connection with his music. Schumann wrote a musical commentary on his life. He ranks with Grieg and Schubert. Miss MacKinnon pointed out that he never wrote for effect; few composers understood so well the significance and possibilities of rhythm as did Schumann. "He was a creative genius, a most original composer, a lover of children and lovable man, as well as a broad-minded and appreciated musical critic; but it is always as Schumann, the composer, that he will be remembered, and will grow more and more in favour of all classes of musical lovers," concluded Miss MacKinnon.

Following this, a violin solo selection from Schumann was given by Miss Della Winters and accompanied by Miss J. Marter, entitled "Tranquillity." In conclusion, Miss Louise (Continued on Page 2)

SECOND MUSICAL AT UNION SUNDAY

Prominent Local Artists have Agreed to Perform

A programme, intended to attract all music lovers as well as all those interested in music at the University, has been arranged by the McGill Music Club, and will take the form of a musicale, which will be held in the Union Ballroom on Sunday afternoon.

Several prominent local musicians have agreed to perform at the gathering. Miss Florence Hood will play several violin solos. Miss Hood's ability on this instrument is well known, and her selection will be undoubtedly greatly appreciated by the audience.

Among those who have promised to give vocal selections is Miss Frances Smart, a local soprano of some note. Miss Smart has not announced just what pieces she will sing, but her repertoire is bound to be an entertaining one.

A McGill student in the person of John Johnson of first year Arts will perform upon the piano. Johnson will play several solos during the afternoon, and will also accompany some of the singers.

The detailed programme for the event has not as yet been announced, but Lawrence Hart, president of the Club, stated last night that it would be published shortly. He also announced that several other artists would be heard during the afternoon. The musicale is to commence at 3.30 o'clock in the afternoon.

CLASS HOCKEY Manager Whitehead announces that schedule of practice hours and rules for this season will be published tomorrow. He advises all managers to cut these out for reference.

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE
I am very much interested in the question of University Services. I would like to see the day when McGill has a chapel of her own in which such services could be held regularly. This service has my full sympathy, and I hope to see a large proportion of the students and of the professional staff present to take part in it.

RADIO SOCIETY VISIT MARCONI STATION CFCF

Visitors Ask Many Questions

NEW MICROPHONE

Station Said to be the Most Powerful in Canada; Output of 1000 Watts

The new and powerful microphone proved to be the chief center of interest to the Radio Society during their visit last evening to the Marconi Broadcasting Station CFCF. It is a similar type to that used in the powerful English station 2LO. As the station is supposed to be one of the most powerful in Canada with an output of 1000 watts the visit proved a most interesting one.

Mr. Wilson, who was in charge of the station at the time took charge of the visitors starting in the studio. This room, with its heavy curtained walls, proved interesting to those who had never been in a broadcasting station before. Mr. Wilson then took the new microphone apart, explaining its parts and principles to the group. He then followed the sound from the microphone to a special amplifier where it is amplified by a resistance coupled system.

From the amplifier the voice is sent in the form of electrical impulse to the transmitter which sends it out into space to be picked up by receiving sets.

The transmitter attracted much attention. This instrument consisted of 5 large 500 watt tubes and two special amplifiers. The plates of the 500 watt tubes are heated with a voltage of from 5000 to 5500 volts, depending on the power required while the filaments require 15 to 20 volts. This high voltage is stepped up from the city power mains by two large power transformers and is then rectified to a direct pulsating current by 6 tubes rectifier and a direct current is obtained after a system of filters.

The group was then given a chance to ask questions. Many availed themselves of this opportunity and kept the assistants quite busy. Surprise was expressed at the growth of the CFCF station in the last few years. The assistant then explained the system of broadcasting material from different parts of the city—small microphones and sets transmitting to the main station over private telephone wires.

President Moore and Secretary Apter then thanked the authorities on behalf of the McGill Radio Association.

MASTERS PRESIDENT

(Special to McGill Daily)
Toronto, December 10.—Masters was elected president of the Rugby Club of Toronto University at a meeting of the organization held at Hart House here today. The other candidates were Howard Stollery and D. Teller.

PROFESSIONAL COACH

(Special to McGill Daily)
Toronto, December 10.—That Varsity's football team is to have a professional coach next season is now practically assured. This afternoon the rugby club strongly advised the Athletic Association to consider this project. The agitation is very ripe, and according to all indications the Varsity twelve will be piloted by a professional next October.

ATHLETIC DANCE

(Special to McGill Daily)
Toronto, December 10.—The Annual Athletic Dance of the University of Toronto will be held in Hart House tomorrow evening.

GALLAY, EDEL AND ALEXANDOR CHOSEN

Will Represent Arts in Inter-Faculty Debates

Alexandor, Gallay and A. Edel will represent the Faculty of Arts in the inter-faculty debating contest. These three men were chosen following the final debate in the faculty contest which took place between Arts III and Arts II yesterday afternoon. Alexandor, of second year will act as leader, Gallay and Edel of third year being the other two.

Third year men were declared the winners of yesterday's debate, and are thus faculty debating champions for the coming year. The winners were represented by Edel, Gallay and Bloomfield, while the speakers for the sophomores were Alexandor, Caron and Barker.

The subject under discussion was "Resolved that the Dominion of Canada should have power to determine its own policy in regard to peace and war." Third upheld the affirmative side of the case. Gallay, Edel and Bloomfield speaking in the order named. Caron led off for second year, and was followed by Barker and Alexandor.

The representatives of third year principally stressed the fact that Canada has now grown up, and is quite capable of looking after itself. They said that Canada was now to all intents and purposes a nation, and that everything pointed to its eventually establishing itself among the world powers. They considered that Canadians should accept the inevitable and agree that this country would soon become independent.

They also dwelt upon the unreliability of the present British foreign policy, stating that it was time for Canada to start out on her own in this regard. The men for the affirmative also declared that the Canadian government was perfectly capable of taking care of itself.

On the other hand the second year speakers based their arguments to some extent on sentiment. They stressed the need for Empire unity, and dwelt on the danger of annexation. They spoke of the peculiar and difficult position that Canada would (Continued on Page 4)

PUBLISHERS OF THE ANNUAL ANNOUNCED

Students' Council Met Yesterday Afternoon

The joint tender of the Federated Press of Montreal and the Photo Engravers of Toronto for the publication of this year's McGill Annual was accepted by the Council at a meeting yesterday. The Annual Board submitted the various tenders and recommended the acceptance of this one.

Sanction was given arrangements for a concert given by the Vermont Glee Club and the McGill Mandolin Club here the end of January.

It was decided that the Chairman of committees for dances held not in the Union but in connection with the University should be instructed to allow the three taxi companies equal rights at their functions.

An advertisement regarding the Song Books printed for an insert in this month's issue of the McGill News going out to graduates.

A request is being issued asking that students inform Miss Heasley at the Secretary's Office of the sickness of any of their classmates. The Council will also receive information regarding this from the Medical department.

NEW ROLE FOR THOMAS

Erle A. (Bud) Thomas, the well known Queen's University outside wing, will be seen in a new role at his university this year. "Bud," who is recognized as one of the best tacklers in Canada, has been recently elected to the presidency of the Alma Mater Society at Queen's.

SICK STUDENTS

Any students who are aware of the illness of any of their classmates are asked by the Council to inform Miss Heasley at the Secretary's Office in the Union of the facts.

LECTURES IN ARTS FACULTY TO STOP TWO WEEKS EARLIER FOR WORK ON NEW BUILDING

Announcement Made by Dr. Nicholson Yesterday—Plans are now Completed—Building to be Ready for Occupation in October—Contract will be Signed in January

Work on the new Arts Building will commence in May, and lectures in the Arts Faculty will stop two weeks earlier than usual in order to allow the contractors to commence work at the beginning of the month, it was announced yesterday by Dr. J. A. Nicholson, University Registrar. This is the first definite information that has been received in connection with the commencement of the work, and it sets at rest the many rumours that have been heard from time to time in this regard.

Plans for the new building have been made, and are now on view in the Faculty Room. The contract will be signed early in January in order to allow the contractors sufficient time to collect their materials before the beginning of May.

Rumour after rumour in regard to the time when the new Arts Building at the University was to be constructed have been spread around the campus this fall. But now these rumours have been set at rest by the announcement made by Dr. Nicholson yesterday that work on the structure will commence at the latest by the beginning of May.

This will mean that lectures in the Faculty of Arts and the School of Commerce will stop two weeks earlier than usual this year. It is even possible that the lectures may stop sooner than this as the contractors may require a longer period in order to finish their work by the beginning of October.

Plans for the building have now been decided upon and they are on show in the Faculty Room in the Arts Building. The actual structure of the present building, as previously announced, is to be retained to a great degree, but the new building will be considerably larger, and in addition there will be the new Moyse Hall. It is understood that the part of the building containing the offices of the Registrar and the Registrar will not be touched as yet, although it may be rebuilt in the near future.

The contract will be signed some time in January, in order that there will be plenty of time to have all the building materials prepared by the beginning of May. The contractors will then be ready to have the work started immediately after the cessation of lectures.

"Some minor changes may yet be made in these arrangements," said Dr. Nicholson. But he believed that they would be essentially as he has announced.

MORE BOXING IN THE UNION TONIGHT

Bouts to Take Place in Ballroom at 5 p.m.

The second of the boxing club's programmes will be held at five o'clock to-night in the ballroom of the Union. Sixteen men have entered and if two more can be secured nine fights will be run off. McLaughlin and Copping 135 and 125-pound classes respectively are still looking for opponents. If no men are forthcoming by that time these men will probably waive the difference in weight and stage an exhibition bout. Brierley and McNaughton are fighting an exhibition bout and Taylor and Chisholm another. Brierley is giving McNaughton considerable weight but he has reach and should make a good showing. The fight between Chisholm and Bert Taylor should be of great interest. Chisholm is now to McGill boxing but from his appearance at last night's workout it is evident that he will give Taylor some very sharp practice and probably figure high in the 147-pound weight class.

AWARD FOR BATSTONE

Harry Lee Batstone, captain of this year's Queen's University football team, Canadian Intercollegiate Champions, has recently received a signal honour at his university. The popular football captain won the athletic stick, which is presented annually to the best all-round man at the college. This means that "Red," who graduates this year, is considered to have done splendid work in his studies as well as on the football field.

ONTARIO RHODES SCHOLARS

Two science students have this year been selected as Rhodes scholars from the Province of Ontario. They are D. W. Dow of the University of Toronto, a British Columbia boy, and L. F. Kindle of Queen's University, Kingston.

BATES COLLEGE DEBATERS GET AUDIENCE VOTE

Question of State Entry into World Court Debated

CLOSE VOTE

Lloyd, Wells and Schwisberg Defeated by Audience Vote of 154-107

(Special to McGill Daily)

Lewisville, Maine, Dec. 10.—The entrance of the United States into the Permanent World Court was upheld on an audience vote by 154-107 when a team from McGill University debated a Bates team in the University Chapel last night. The vote was on the merits of the question and the majority in favour of the entrance of America into the Court was the smallest of any vote taken on the question in this town. President Gray of Bates presided. The visiting speakers were A. O. Lloyd, Samuel Schwisberg and Hubert Wells. The Bates team Misses Catherine P. Lawton, Ethel M. Manning and Florence I. Burck.

Catherine Lawton opened the discussion for the affirmative. She welcomed the McGill debaters to Bates in a fitting manner and then proceeded with her argument.

The question of the entrance of the United States into the World Court is a question of vital interest to the people of the nation. This country is one of the few nations that have not entered into the court but the issue is to be presented to Congress, the 17th of this month Miss Lawton said and then described the operation of the Court.

The world and United States in particular needs an effective means of insuring peace through judicial settlement of disputes. The World Court of International Justice fulfills the need in that it is an effective means of performing that function. The entrance into the World Court is the most practical step that the United States can take.

The United States is not immune from the world's troubles by any means. We are not isolated from the rest of the world but are in a very (Continued on page three)

THE WIDER FRIENDSHIP

It is thought by many people that the recent signing of the Locarno pact marks a new era in the relations of nation with nation. Correspondents who were present during the days of the conference which led up to the final decision report that the atmosphere throughout the negotiations was one of sincerity and even of warmth. In fact, one newspaper was attempting to carry out a policy of antagonism to the whole affair found itself receiving such favorable reports that it changed its representatives; even this was of no avail, however, for soon after the new men arrived they caught the spirit of the meeting and wrote according to it.

When one considers the bitter feelings that have prevailed in Europe for ten years, it is impossible to account for the complete change in attitude except by admitting a change of heart. As several prominent men have said in the last month, "It was not Locarno that made the better feelings, but rather the new spirit of brotherliness that made possible Locarno and all that it involves."

It is not unfitting at this time to recall that students of the world have played a very striking part in making for this wider friendship of nation with nation. For in the dark days that followed the war, when central Europe was in the throes of famine, pestilence and misery and the universities were in the deepest distress, an appeal was presented to the students of the more fortunate nations which went under the name of European Student Relief.

This appeal presented the facts in the boldest outline, and the students the world over received it with a whole-heartedness which far exceeded the fondest hopes of those who were responsible for its broadcasting. Not only did they subscribe once, but many times, until the students of Europe realised that true friends were taking an interest in them, although they were members of former enemy countries. The depth of the impression that this must have made on them can only be partly appreciated; suffice it to say that already German students have begun to pay back into the Fund, which is still being kept open under the name of International Student Service.

This wider friendship is one which is being brought home continually to us at McGill. We are members of a University which is truly cosmopolitan in its enrollment; the men who are here from other countries cannot help but mark well with what attitude they are being received. And it is in these day by day contacts that the foundations of a solid international friendship are built.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A tendency which is to be deplored has made itself felt in college during the last few weeks. One instance of this was noticed when a prominent professor announced in his lecture that his watch had been taken from his desk; another, which has not yet been cleared up, occurred in the Arts Student Council elections and savours of the "telegraphing" we hear of in politics.

We note with considerable interest that the term in the Faculty of Arts and the School of Commerce is expected to be shortened this year, on account of the long-awaited renovations on the Arts Building.

The University Service on Sunday morning in the Union is worthy of a large attendance of both students and members of the Faculty. The Principal has made quite clear that he is in accord with the arrangements, and only wishes that such services could be held each week for the students.

He has spent six years in China, and during his time there was instrumental in producing the most comprehensive study of the missionary situation there that has ever been prepared.

During Mr. Stauffer's stay here a number of meetings have been arranged for him. To-day he will have lunch with the Boards of the McGill and R.V.C. S.C.A., and in the afternoon will address the Student Volunteer group at an open meeting. To-morrow afternoon and evening a conference has been planned at St. Laurent to discuss the problem of modern missions and the relation of McGill undergraduates to it. On Sunday afternoon he will visit Macdonald College to speak to the students there, returning to New York at night.

THE LIBRARY EXHIBIT

That all interested may have a full knowledge of the interesting items to be viewed at the Library Museum which is now offering a special exhibition of Oriental books, manuscripts, paintings and illuminations a more or less detailed account has been gathered of the exhibit and will be published in successive issues of the Daily until concluded.

As stated by Dr. Lomer, the Librarian, yesterday afternoon, and which is not generally known, the main purpose of the exhibit to show what a vast amount of material is available for use in the study of Oriental culture. The exhibit also points to the extensive resources of the Library. In the opinion of the Museum Committee to little emphasis is placed upon, and interest shown in, this form of education. It was pointed out by them that on almost any afternoon, in either the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City, or the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, whole classes and groups of school-children may be seen gazing over the cases while the teacher explains their contents.

However, as regards the Library Exhibit:

Chinese Collection:

The first case contains fac-similes of 17th century Chinese drawings in water-color. They are taken from two famous text-books on painting—very rare books, of which the originals could not very likely be found, and of which only a very few copies exist. Even the names are picturesque. "The Mustard Seed Garden" and "The Ten Bamboo Hall."

Many more Chinese fac-similes are found in Case 2 A and B. The most interesting is one which is said to be a fac-simile of the oldest printed book. Another one, beautifully written and containing colored drawings, describes the equipment of the armies in Fukien, Kwangtung, and the Southern Provinces. A Manchu-Chinese dictionary which dates back to 1683, and some leaves from 17th century medical and religious works are also seen.

Other forms of Chinese printing are represented in the same case: one, "A story of Precious Stones" printed with illustrations in Shanghai, was presented to the exhibition by Paul C. Fan, a student following post-graduate studies at McGill; Of interest also is a pretty fan illustrated with Chinese scenes.

Japanese: Cases 3 A—B, 4 A—B.

Among the Japanese collection are found many works of art in the form of paintings, drawings, manuscripts, and even decorative articles of chess. Among the latter, for instance are several ivory and lacquered-wooden combs and hair-ornaments. Tea Jar Bases made from old textiles, and quaintly decorated sword guards, both from the Cleveland Morgan collection, catch the eye at once.

Unrolled along the entire length of Case 3 A—B lies a fac-simile of a painting by the 4th Century Chinese artist Ku Kai-Chih. "Admonitions of the Instructress of the Palace" is the title, referring to the work of Chang Hua (232-300 A. D. in which he attempts to embody what the ideal instructors might be presumed to teach the young women under her charge in the Imperial Harem. It consists of nine scenes, and was copied by two Japanese artists from the original in the British Museum.

In case 4 A—B are found many types of Japanese printing along with several Japanese painting and drawing books.

Indian: Cases 5A, and B, 6A, and B. In this collection several Sanskrit manuscripts, Hindu bindings and Indian miniatures are noteworthy. Two of the miniatures of the Rajput School of the 8th century, are executed in quite vivid colors. The Hindu paintings, depicting various forms of Hindu life, present a strange sight and are well worth an examination.

Arabic Calligraphy: Cases 12B, 13, 14, 15.

Beautifully inscribed and decorated manuscripts of many colours comprise this collection. These are the specimens works of especially skillful students in the art of writing—where writing is indeed an art, and known to merely a few.

Concerning the manuscripts the Museum label reads: "When a master found that any of his students had attained a good hand he directed him to write two or three specimens (Iz-Namah they are called), one in Thuluth and the other in Nashk, to be submitted for approval." The writings contain such testimonials as "Life is from Faith," "That of which much intoxicates, a little thereof is unlawful." Many of them are brilliantly illuminated in gold floral and other designs, and with the "plaques" of the teachers and quaint signatures of the pupils present a colorful array.

Continued to-morrow: Casey Wood Collections, and others.

The parson's reputation is well-known here. Pratt, winner of one of last week's bouts will fight Morrison 135-pound. Cohen 126-pound who fought Adams at St. Anne's will box Munselman who won a bout on the same programme. The one remaining bout will be between Baldwin and Lister. Lister had not contested here before but he has been getting some snappy work in at practice. The club executive has been busy arranging a good ring with canvas flooring to prevent a repetition of last week's trouble. The same official will act as at last week's programme. The coach is expecting a large number of spectators as the hour has been changed to 5 p.m.

of the argument being embodied in the first article. He stressed the fact that the Treaty was absolutely in accordance with the League of Nations and not opposed to it. In conclusion he said he thought that the people of a country should be educated up to the necessity for peace and that the decisions should not have to be left to the few big men.

Heated discussion took place afterwards in which many took part. Naval question, air questions, the oil and rubber question but chiefly Mr. Meighan's speech at Ham Hon. were the subjects of keen argument.

Important position. We have foreign investments of over 21 billions of dollars, and these investments are increasing each year and we cannot be isolated because we must follow up our investments. We have our foreign trade and our different policies, such as the Open Door, Panama Canal, etc., and it is plainly seen that the United States is more closely connected with the rest of the world than ever before and needs co-operation from an international tribunal more than ever before.

Other nations of the world have joined this court and of the 65 nations of the world 45 are members of the court. Public opinion in the United States is in favor of our entering the court and figures compiled from a popular vote in all parts of the country bear out this fact.

Hubert Wells
The first speaker for the negative was Hubert Wells. He thanked President Gray for the welcome accorded the Canadian debaters by the college and expressed his pleasure on the fact that between the United States and Canada there has been more than 100 years peace. He said that any way out of war would be worth working on as war means memories or horrors and terrible experiences.

The speaker then proceeded to show that the Permanent Court is not a solution for the problem of War. Similar propositions which have been attempted before have failed because of the lack of sincerity on the part of the nations involved. Mr. Wells doubted whether the members of the present Court were to be trusted. He also showed the connection between the League and Court, claiming that the latter is only an instrument of the former.

He quoted Prof. Hudson to show that the Court was only the machinery of the League. This would endanger the foreign policy of the United States which has been consistent for a century and a half. This policy has been one of isolation and no entanglements with Europe. Entanglements with Europe has in fact led the United States into war, in which she has no interest. In proof of this he referred to the Colonists' Wars, King George's and Queen Anne's wars. He then quoted from Washington's farewell speech and urged that the United States follow the Founder's advice to keep out of Europe. Jefferson had also urged to avoid all entangling alliances.

And, since the policy of the United States had been to keep free from Europe it seemed the speaker to be utterly folly to leave a positive policy for a weaker one. Mr. Wells could see no reason why this policy was untenable to-day claiming that the so-called nearness of Europe was one of time only. There seemed to be far less need of entering Europe now than at any time in the history of the country.

Ethel Manning
Miss Ethel Manning was the second speaker for Bates. "It is obvious," she stated, "that in the debate this evening both teams are arguing for world peace, but the difference arises over what method shall be taken to secure peace."

The World Court is an effective means for promoting peace through justice. First, because it is sound in nature and organization. The second consideration is the purpose of the Court. It is set up by the Nations of the world in an attempt to substitute law for war to use the method of civilization rather than savagery for settling international disputes. We do not contend that this court will immediately put an end to war, but it is purely an advance toward the realization of that goal.

But after all the proof of the pudding is in the eating. Since its session in January 1922 this court has handed down eight decisions and some advisory opinions.

One of the greatest factors which makes our joining the World Court desirable is the promise it holds for the future for this court furnishes one of the most prominent agencies for the improvement and development of international law.

The United States has always been a leader for establishing justice not only within her own boundaries but throughout the world. Let her bring the added vigor of her influence to the World Court let her show that she recognizes her relationship with the other nations of the world and that she is willing to assume her share of the responsibility for establishing peace through justice.

Samuel Schwisberg
The radical question at issue was "Can tribunals or world courts secure peace?" The inherent weakness of international law, so called lay in the lack of power to execute a judgment. There is not present the jurisdiction which a competent national court possesses. In the latter case the legislator enacts the Court, adjudicates the executive arm enforces and punishment for infraction is sure and swift. There are no such sanctions to compel obedience to international law. Law is a rule of conduct imposed upon a subject by a superior power. There is no power superior to the sovereign states which jealous of their sovereignty will not permit encroachment upon it in order that an international tribunal might be endowed with jurisdiction. Public opinion is no

E. C. AMARON CAPTAINS TRACK TEAM FOR 1926

E. C. Amaron of Theology '27 was elected captain of the McGill University Track Team for 1926 at a short meeting of the club held after the photograph of the team had been taken at five o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Amaron, who won the discus event for McGill this year in the Intercollegiate meet, is an experienced athlete, and under his guidance McGill's performers on the cinder path should make a great effort to win back the coveted track trophy next fall.

sanction because there is no international opinion.

The peoples of the world are too diversified to get beyond national viewpoints. Every change in the geography or polity of Europe since the dawn of history had been de facto and not de jure. In fact it was a maxim of so called international law that success justifies usurpation. The motivating purpose underlying every Convention, Holy Alliance or Entente had only been a new realignment in the struggle for hegemony or maintenance of the balance of power. Their successive collapse proved the fallacy of agreements. What shadow of effective international legislation existed belonged to the realm of private international law.

The machinery for his project had existed in the defunct Hague Conventions. Mr. Schwisberg continued, quoting articles from both it and the World Court statutes emphasizing their similarity. A similar fate awaits this new abracadabra.

There were voices in the Permanent Court's Constitution which were a danger to the U. S. because the judges were political appointees of the League. Before such a Court, U. S. must always be an unsuccessful litigant, hence covetous Europe desired it. However it is futile by its own provisions since neither acceptance of its jurisdiction nor obedience by its judgments are compulsory. A Convention of this kind presupposes peaceful purpose. The hypocrisy of the apparent Concert in Europe is revealed by the Armament race and the rearing up of the Little Entente as potential butter states by a power whose present military footing exceeds the pre-war mark. But where the minds of people were for peace it was possible as between U. S. and Canada for 100 years, without armies or navies.

Florence Burck
Those who take it upon themselves the responsibility of advising us not to join this means for attaining peace also assume the great responsibility; that of proposing some other workable means of bringing about peace, which must be at least equally as effective as the World Court of International Justice or better.

Our opponents may propose one of four alternatives: The League of Nations treaties a new court drifting policy. None of these is desirable since we as a nation are not ready to join the League since treaties in the past have failed to maintain peace; since a new court is impossible due to the fact that we are already have one which has proved satisfactory; to follow a drifting policy is dangerous and might lead to war which is the thing that we of the world of to-day and the future are trying to avoid.

A. O. Lloyd
The speaker questioned whether the discussion was to be won through the use of logic nerve or the auditory canal. The special attempt of the European politicians to get the United States into the World Court on terms far easier than any other nation aroused the suspicion that the other nations might later walk out and leave Uncle Sam to pay the waiter. The World Court was distinctly a European affair. The United States were asked to leave traditional policy and take a part in this Court. But the States was bound to become entangled in European politics by so doing because every problem has two aspects a legal and a political.

The Court will have immense power in its decisions. At present a small nation might appeal from its decisions to the free unperjudiced decision of the United States. But this opinion would not be open to them if the United States were not strict neutral. The speaker claimed the safety and happiness of the world lay not in the United States joining the World Court but remaining free to offer an entirely free opinion. The United States had been able in the past to work on behalf of humanity. She had done this without a Court or League and so no need to join now. The World Court was not a guarantee of peace. No nation was compelled to submit its decisions to the Court and therefore a nation would only submit those matters to the Court that they did not feel able to take by force or strategy. The nations had refused the compulsory clause which was the only feature of the Court which offered any real advance in the interest of peace. This rejection showed the feebleness of the faith of European nations in the Court institution and gave no promise of being a barrier to war.

Henry Ford says that when the flying machine makes it possible all over the world for everybody to know everybody else we shall have universal peace. And yet Henry has lived in a small home town.

Many are called, but few have courage enough to stay in bed.

Something We're Mighty Proud Of

Yes, we're delighted that the students of McGill University like our service. We certainly try to please them, and by the orders we receive every day, especially before and after dances, we have an idea that we're realizing our ambition.

Course, you know we've got as many cabs in operation as any other taxi company in Montreal. And its important to remember that our rates are the lowest metered charges in the city.

But, best of all, it's a treat to ride in our cabs. They're comfortable, and swanky, with not just enough room, but ample room.

Use a KENNEDY again, the next time you need a taxi, you will always have a courteous, well-trained chauffeur, to drive you. We'll reserve the cab for you any hour you name if you just phone us at
